Director

Tessa is a comedy focused director, editor, and writer from Brooklyn, NY. Before working with networks such as HBO, Disney Plus, and IFC, Tessa grew up playing with her Dad's video camera and watching Pee Wee's Playhouse, Beetlejuice, and anything weird that could be recorded from TV onto a VHS.

Her work has screened at SXSW, NYTVF, The Women in Comedy Fest, and Tribeca Film Festival (2016) where she won the Grand Prize for her Snapchat film, "Hot Dogs Forever". She was the winner of truTV's Comedy Breakout development deal in 2018, and also recently won the VICE Spammmy award for "Best Comedy" on her 1 minute mobile phone short, "How I Lost My Virginity".

Tessa honed her comedic filmmaking sensibilities while working for the Upright Citizens Brigade Theatre and their digital arm, UCB Comedy & Don't Think Production where she was a resident director and editor.

Tessa is also a co-founder of the Brooklyn indie filmmaking collective, Video Mass (videomass.tv). Their sci-fi and horror-anthology films have screened around the country and most recently at the Et Cultura film festival in St.Petersburg, Florida.
